

My Blog

Hello my friends, How are you? thanks a lot for the views of my blog, in this moment i want to tell you of the thing what i like of this city and some things what i make in my school.

Im staying whit my roomates from different countries someone came from Latinoamerica and they have so much forms of fun, but i don´t like sleep late because every day wakes up in the morning for train in the park in the center of paris, where i have a beautiful view of eiifel tower, it is one of my favorite places of the city.

In the afternnon i go at the school and my teachers told me that my English is bad but i can improve with a much practice and ask me for my desicion for learn English in France, i answer because is my favorite city in the world and they have good teachers of Languaje, in the future i would like to learn French.

In the nights i go sighseeig with my classmates for know the places and eat the tipycal food in the restaurants and with local people, but is very difficult speak with they in English, because they like when i speak in Spanish and it is one of my favorite things of the people in paris.
